1. In early June 1949¹² was decreed that only junior officers, i.e. first and second lieutenants and captains, who had a minimum education of a four-grade junior high school would be granted permanent ranks in the regular army, while junior officers being tutored to attain this minimum standard of education were given titular ranks only.
2. Field officers, i.e. majors, lieutenant colonels and colonels, were granted a permanent rank only if they were graduates from a six-grade junior high school. They held titular ranks while being tutored to attain this minimum standard of education.
3. Officers were not granted any allowances to pay their tutors.
4. Officers seeking appointment to a permanent rank were given a test by a board of examiners. Officers who failed to pass the examination were to be retired or taken into civil service.
